

Trauma Response and the Criminal Justice System: A Virtual Summit on Knowledge, Healing, and Resilience

Working Together to Reduce Recidivism

Inmates experience trauma and anxiety when returning to the community. They are often told upon release that they need to find employment and housing; obtain important documents such as birth certificates, State IDs, and drivers' licenses; and address any mental health issues and/or substance abuse addictions. Additionally, they often have a need for food, clothing, shelter, health care, transportation, education and stable housing. Depending on how long that client spent in prison, they do not know how to navigate the systems, let alone do this utilizing modern technology. The Greater Erie Community Action Committee (GECAC) Reentry Case Managers address these issues by walking the clients through each process to address these needs. Obtaining some of these needs requires the use of modern technology not to mention dealing with pre-conceived ideas and stigmatism relating to these individuals. A huge number of our clients have stated that "it is better going back to prison than having to deal with these processes". Without the support of the Reentry program, most of our clients would return to the prison system. In this forum, we will address the following processes:

1. Building working relationships with these individuals;
2. Assisting them in locating employment and dealing with employers;
3. Navigating through the paper work; and
4. Locating and becoming engaged in services to address their mental health and/or substance abuse additions.
