I. INTRODUCTION

The Virginia Juvenile Law Handbook for School Administrators informs and assists school decision-makers and other school personnel in fostering a safe and secure educational environment. The Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services' Center for School and Campus Safety (VCSCS) and the Office of the Attorney General collaborated to produce this Handbook.

When is it appropriate to use the Juvenile Law Handbook?

The Handbook can be used before incidents as a source of planning and prevention, during incidents as a resource, or after an incident to organize capacities and define appropriate responses. Please note, the Handbook does not represent legal advice—rather this is a source of information and collection of resources for decision-makers.

How should the Handbook be used?

The Handbook is organized into a series of topics and, within those topics, subdivided into questions that address the most pressing issues around the topic. Additionally, the Handbook provides agency, legal, and other links to supplementary information.

The online format of this Handbook (www.virginiarules.com/juvenile-law-handbook) features links to the Code of Virginia (<http://law.lis.virginia.gov/vacode>) and to key publications and resources.

Throughout this document, the RESOURCES icon will alert you to helpful resources on the web.

What are offenses?

“Offense” is a term used by the Virginia Department of Education to document violations of the Discipline, Crime, and Violence (DCV) student conduct policies. Some of these offenses are also violations of Virginia criminal code and thus crimes. These violations must be immediately reported to law enforcement. It is important to accurately report crimes to law enforcement and offenses to the Department of Education for several reasons. Resource allocation is often driven by data-based decision making. If a region is experiencing an emerging problem (e.g., increased drugs in schools), decision-makers need accurate information in order to assemble and implement the appropriate response.

What is Virginia Rules?

The Virginia Rules curriculum, found at www.virginiarules.com and published by the Virginia Office of the Attorney General, is a law-related educational program which offers a set of lesson plans and information sources that detail key safety and security issues. There are twenty-two specific curricula covering topics like: gangs, bullying, drugs, criminal law, and civil law. These curricula inform teachers, administrators, and students through exercises, information, handouts, videos, and other tools. Instructors can be teachers, police, volunteers, or others who are willing to study the lesson plan and instructional materials and then deliver the program to students. The juvenile law handbook is a partner document for the Virginia Rules curriculum.

II. OFFENSES

The Offenses listed in this section are based on the Virginia Department of Education's Discipline, Crime, and Violence (DCV) codes and definitions and carry the DCV DEFINITION icon. To find out more about DCV codes visit:

www.doe.virginia.gov/info_management/data_collection/support/school_safety.

In this section, DCV offenses that are required to be reported to law enforcement carry the REPORTABLE OFFENSE icon.

1. Alcohol Offenses

What is an alcoholic beverage?

The term alcoholic beverages is defined in Code of Virginia § 4.1-100 as including “alcohol, spirits, wine, and beer, and any one or more of such varieties containing one-half of one percent or more of alcohol by volume, including mixed alcoholic beverages, and every liquid or solid, powder or crystal, patented or not, containing alcohol, spirits, wine, or beer and capable of being consumed by a human being.”

At what age is alcohol use allowed?

Age 21. It is illegal for any person under the age of 21 to purchase, possess, or attempt to purchase or possess any alcoholic beverage. The sale, purchase, or use of powdered or crystal alcohol is illegal in, according to Code of Virginia § 4.1-309.

What is the penalty for someone under 21 possessing or purchasing alcohol?

The court can find an adult or juvenile defendant guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor and order a mandatory minimum fine of $500 or a mandatory 50 hours of community service and suspend the driver’s license of anyone or deny driving privileges for not less than six months or more than one year.

According to the Code of Virginia § 4.1-305, for a first offense, the court may defer further proceedings and place the adult accused on probation subject to conditions imposed by the court that may include license suspension or restrictions. When proceedings are deferred, the court must require the adult accused to enter a treatment or education program, or both, depending on what the court believes best suits the needs of the accused. If the adult accused abides by the conditions, the court will discharge the person from probation and dismiss charges without an adjudication of guilt.

According to Code of Virginia §§ 16.1-278.8 and 16.1-278.9, the court may defer proceedings and order the child to participate in rehabilitation programs; place the child on probation; order treatment for the abuse or dependence of alcohol or drugs; impose a fine not to exceed $500; suspend the child’s driver’s license or imposing a curfew on the hours the child may operate a vehicle; or require the child to participate in a public service project. If the child complies with the terms of the deferred disposition, the court will dismiss the charges without an adjudication of guilt.

What other penalties may apply for alcohol-related offenses?

According to the Code of Virginia § 4.1-305, anyone (adult or minor) possessing or consuming alcohol on public school property may face up to $1,000 in fines and spend up to six months in jail.

Anyone who purchases, possesses, or drinks alcohol, upon conviction, may lose their privilege to drive for not less than six months (and up to one year maximum). They face a mandatory minimum fine of $500 or must perform a mandatory minimum of 50 hours of community service.

Using a fake ID to buy alcohol means that in addition to the penalties listed above for possession of alcohol, anyone convicted will lose their privilege to drive for not less than 30 days (and up to one year maximum).

In addition, fraudulent use of a driver’s license, ID card, or other identification materials means:

- it is illegal to use another’s ID as one’s own,

6. Sexual Offenses

What is sexual assault?

Sexual assault is sexual abuse of an individual by the use of force, threat, or intimidation. Rape, sodomy, sexual battery, and attempts to commit these crimes are some of the several types of sexual assault offenses.

What should a school do if a student reports being sexually assaulted?

School personnel must report the matter to law enforcement immediately. Subsequent response depends on the particular circumstances of the assault.

School administrators should also be aware that Code of Virginia § 22.1-3.3 permits the transfer of a student who is the victim of any crime committed by another student, a school board employee, or a volunteer or contract worker who regularly works in the school. A student may transfer also if the crime was committed upon school property or on any school bus owned or operated by the school division. The transfer must be to another comparable school within the school division if available. Such transfer is to occur only when requested by parent, or student if emancipated, when the student would suffer physical or psychological harm.

All of the following sexual assault offenses must be immediately reported to law enforcement.

| DCV Code |  |
|--|---|
| SX3 – Sexual Offense-Forcible against Staff | Sexual penetration (e.g., oral, anal, or vaginal) against a staff member without consent. |

| SX8 – Sexual Offense-Aggravated Sexual Battery | Sexually abusing a victim less than thirteen years of age or accomplishing the act against the will of the victim by force, threat, intimidation, or through the use of the victim’s mental incapacity or physical helplessness, and—the victim is at least thirteen but less than fifteen years of age, or the accused causes serious bodily or mental injury to the victim, or the accused uses or threatens to use a dangerous weapon. Sexual abuse means an act committed with the intent to sexually molest, arouse, or gratify any person where the accused intentionally touches the victim’s intimate parts or material directly covering such intimate parts; the accused forces the victim to touch the victim’s own or another person’s intimate parts or material directly covering such intimate parts; or the accused forces another person to touch the victim’s intimate parts or material directly covering such intimate parts. |

What assistance is available for victims of sexual assault?

Sexual assault crisis centers offer services 24 hours a day. Services offered include: crisis intervention and emotional support, advocacy, and information on legal, counseling, and medical options available.

Call the statewide, toll-free Family Violence and Sexual Assault Hotline at 1-800-838-8238, which is operated by the Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Action Alliance. The hotline staff can put you in touch with your local victim/witness program, domestic violence program, and/or court service unit. Someone is there to answer your questions 24 hours a day.

How can a school prevent sexual violence?

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has several resources for sexual violence prevention. They publish a fact sheet which provides an overview of sexual violence, available at: www.cdc.gov/ViolencePrevention/pdf/SV-DataSheet-a.pdf.

How do transgender issues impact school policy?

The United States Department of Justice and Department of Education has specified that schools must treat students consistent with their gender identity. They state:

The Departments treat a student’s gender identity as the student’s sex for purposes of Title IX and its implementing regulations. This means that a school must not treat a transgender student differently from the way it treats other students of the same gender identity.

This may impact issues such as bathroom, locker room, team membership, and other school policies. The Federal government’s position is detailed in a 2016 Dear Colleague Letter.

7. Stalking

What is stalking?

According to Code of Virginia § 18.2-60.3, stalking is defined as engaging in conduct, on more than one occasion, directed at another person with the intent to place the person in fear of death, criminal sexual assault, or bodily injury to that other person or that person’s family or household member. If the threat is written, the person is guilty of a Class 6 felony, which can result in imprisonment of not less than one year nor more than five years or confinement in a jail for not more than 12 months and/or a possible fine of not more than $2,500. However, if a written threat is made on school premises, at a school-sponsored event, or on a school bus, it is a Class 6 felony, even if the person who is the target of the threat doesn’t receive the threat.

In addition, anyone who orally makes threats to kill or do bodily injury to any school employee while on school property, at a school-sponsored activity, or while on a school bus is guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. A Class 1 misdemeanor can result in confinement in jail for not more than 12 months and/or a fine of not more than $2,500. Persons making threats can be prosecuted either in the county, city, or town where the threatening communication was made, or where it was received.

A threat against school staff must be immediately reported to law enforcement.

| DCV Code |  |
| TI1 – Threat/Intimidation- Against Staff | Unlawfully placing a staff member in fear of bodily harm through physical, verbal, written or electronic threats which immediately creates fear of harm without displaying a weapon or subjecting the person to actual physical attack. Consider age, developmentally appropriate behavior, and disability status before using this category. |

- any disc, of whatever configuration, having at least two points or pointed blades which is designed to be thrown or propelled and which may be known as a throwing star or oriental dart.

- a person who has a valid concealed handgun permit and possesses a concealed handgun while in a motor vehicle in a parking lot, traffic circle, or other means of vehicular ingress or egress to the school.

What types of disciplinary action can be taken with a student who brings a weapon to school?

According to Code of Virginia § 22.1-277.07, school boards are required to expel students who bring a firearm or other destructive device onto school property or to a school-sponsored event in violation of the Gun-Free Schools Act of 1994. A school administrator, pursuant to school board policy, or a school board, however, may determine, based on the facts of a particular situation that special circumstances exist and no disciplinary action or another disciplinary action or another term of expulsion is appropriate. A school board may also ask the division superintendent, or his or her designee, to conduct a preliminary investigation and provide recommendations.

All of the following DCV offenses must be immediately reported to law enforcement.

B. Offenses Which May be Reported to Law Enforcement

The following offenses do not carry the requirement of immediate reporting to law enforcement. Many of them are, however, crimes and school administrators should consider reporting them to law enforcement. The following DCV offenses are not required to be reported to law enforcement, but depending on the severity of the offense, law enforcement contact could prove beneficial and/or necessary.

1. Offenses Against Persons

Crimes against persons involve the direct physical harm or force applied to another person; this includes threatening or making someone fearful of harm.

| DCV Code |  DCV DEFINITION |
|----------------------------|--|
| BU1 – Bullying | Using repeated negative behaviors intended to frighten or cause harm. These may include, but are not limited to, verbal or written threats or physical harm. |
| BU2 – Cyberbullying | Cyberbullying is defined as using information and communication technologies, such as cell phone text messages and pictures and internet e-mail, social networking Web sites, defamatory personal Web sites, and defamatory online personal polling Web sites to support deliberate, hostile behavior intended to harm others. |

Is there a legal definition of bullying in Virginia?

Yes. As defined in the Code of Virginia §22.1-276.01, bullying is “any aggressive and unwanted behavior that is intended to harm, intimidate, or humiliate the victim. Bullying involves a real or perceived power imbalance between the aggressor or aggressors and victim and is repeated over time or causes severe emotional trauma. Bullying includes cyberbullying. Bullying does not include ordinary teasing, horseplay, argument, or peer conflict.” Each school board is to implement policies that fit within the definition.

Is there a legal definition of cyberbullying?

Yes. The Code of Virginia §18.2-427 defines cyberbullying as “any person who uses obscene, vulgar, profane, lewd, lascivious, or indecent language, or makes any suggestion or proposal of an obscene nature, or threatens any illegal or immoral act with the intent to coerce, intimidate, or harass any person, over any telephone” (includes any electronically transmitted communication producing a visual or electronic message that is received or transmitted by cellular telephone or other wireless telecommunications device). Some examples of cyberbullying are:

- making fun of another user in an Internet chat room;
- harassing a user over an instant messaging session;
- circulating false rumors about someone on social networking websites;
- publishing lewd comments about another person on a personal blog;
- posting unflattering pictures of another user on the Web;
- spamming another user with unwanted e-mail messages;
- sending threatening or provocative e-mail;
- repeatedly calling another person’s cell phone; and/or
- sending unsolicited text messages to another user.

This offense is a Class 1 misdemeanor.

The Virginia Department of Education and the Virginia Department of Health also offer advice for bullying prevention at www.doe.virginia.gov/support/prevention/bullying and www.vdh.virginia.gov/livewell/programs/yvbp.

Is extortion a crime?

Yes. According to Code of Virginia § 18.2-59, extortion is the act of obtaining money or property from another person by using or threatening to use violence or other criminal means to cause harm to a person, or by threatening harm to that person’s reputation, or that person’s property. Extortion can also involve threats to accuse someone of committing an offense, and thereby obtaining money or property from that person.

It is important to note that Blackmail is the common name for extortion where the threat is not physical but relates to exposing some secret or true or alleged fact which would do harm to someone’s circumstances or damage his or her reputation.

Extortion is a Class 5 felony.

What is the difference between a threat against a student and a threat against staff?

Legally, the definition of a threat is the same. According to Code of Virginia § 18.2-60, in general, a threat is a communication that threatens to kill or do bodily injury to another person or any member of that person’s family, when that communication places the other person in reasonable fear of death or bodily injury to himself or his family. Also, according to DCV code, a threat against staff is required to be immediately reported to law enforcement.

How is robbery different from theft?

Robbery involves the taking of anything of value by force or threat of force. Theft does not involve force or the threat of force or violence. Because of the presence of force or the threat of force, robbery is classified as a crime against persons.

What is kidnapping?

The terms kidnapping and abduction are synonymous in Virginia law. The Code of Virginia § 18.2-47 states: “Any person who, by force, intimidation or deception, and without legal justification or excuse, seizes, takes, transports, detains or secretes another person with the intent to deprive such other person of his personal liberty or to withhold or conceal him from any person, authority or institution lawfully entitled to his charge, shall be deemed guilty of ‘abduction.’”

What are the laws pertaining to hazing?

According to Code of Virginia § 18.2-56, “hazing” means to endanger the health or safety of a student or students or to inflict bodily injury on a student or students, either recklessly or intentionally, in connection with or as part of initiation or admission into a club, organization, association, fraternity, sorority, or student body. It also applies to activities that act as a condition for continued membership in these organizations. It does not matter whether the student or students so endangered or injured participated voluntarily in the relevant activity.

Hazing is a Class 1 misdemeanor. In addition, someone who receives bodily injury from hazing has the right to sue the person or persons found guilty of hazing in civil court. Also, a perpetrator of hazing may be expelled or subject to other disciplinary action.

Furthermore, school boards are required to include rules against hazing in their codes of student conduct and to develop programs to prevent violence and crime on school property and at school-sponsored events, including hazing.

What is the difference between harassment and sexual harassment?

Harassment means to repeatedly annoy or attack a person or group in such a way as to cause anxiety or fear for safety. Several different types of harassment are against Virginia law:

- Code of Virginia § 18.2-186.4 – It is unlawful to publish a person’s name or photograph with identifying information, such as social security number, driver’s license number, personal identification number (PIN), credit or debit card number, or address, with the intent to coerce, intimidate, or harass another person. This offense is a Class 1 misdemeanor. If the victim is a law enforcement officer, the offense is a Class 6 felony and there is a mandatory minimum term of confinement of six months.
- Code of Virginia § 18.2-429 – Prank telephone calls are a form of harassment. If a person calls or pages another person with the intent to annoy that person, both the person making the call and any other person who allows use of his telephone are guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor. If the call is made to an emergency response telephone, such as police, fire, or emergency medical service, with intent to annoy, harass, hinder, or delay emergency personnel in performance of their duties, the person making the call and the person whose telephone is used are guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor.
- Code of Virginia § 18.2-152.7:1 – It is also illegal to harass someone using a computer or computer network. If a person has the intent to coerce, intimidate, or harass and communicates obscene or indecent language or threatens an illegal or immoral act, the person is guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor.

What is sexual harassment?

A general definition of sexual harassment is unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other physical or verbal conduct or communication of a sexual nature, including gender-based harassment that creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive educational or work environment.

It is important for schools to have in place policies or regulations that define sexual harassment and establish procedures for reporting.

What is sexting?

The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (2009) defines sexting as “youth writing sexually explicit messages, taking sexually explicit photos of themselves or others in their peer group, and transmitting those photos and/or messages to their peers.” Although this behavior may not be criminal in intent, it can be construed as such under current laws. Importantly, two behaviors that might look like sexting are more likely to be considered criminal activities: (1) when a child sends a sexually explicit photo to an adult and (2) when a child sends sexually explicit photos because they have been coerced or enticed to do so.

The legal consequences of sexting are a serious concern. Producing, storing, or sharing lewd or explicit pictures of minors is against the law in Virginia – felonies that apply to students merely possessing such images on their cell phones, sharing them with other students via cell phone, or producing them using their cell phones (Code of Virginia §§ 18.2-374.1). Occurrences of sexting involving minors may represent child pornography—the Code of Virginia sections noted previously are child pornography laws.

Other laws may be invoked depending on the circumstances:

- Code of Virginia §18.2-152.7:1 – if the sexting involves bullying or harassment;
- Code of Virginia §18.2-374.3 – if the sexting involves an adult who has solicited images from a child or who has shared explicit images with a child.

★ RESOURCES

A primary resource for information on sexting is the Virginia Department of Education’s Information Brief – Sexting: Implications for Schools. The Brief contains lists of additional related resources. www.doe.virginia.gov/support/technology/info_briefs/sexting.pdf.

What is revenge porn and is it against the law?

According to Code of Virginia §18.2-386.2, it is illegal to sell or send images of another person who is entirely naked or undressed enough to expose the genitals, pubic area, buttocks, or female breasts, when the sender/seller is not authorized to distribute such pictures and does so with the intent to coerce, harass, or intimidate this person. This is a Class 1 misdemeanor

What are laws related to sex offenders and schools?

Code of Virginia § 18.2-370.5 prohibits entry of sex offenders onto public or private school property or day care centers during school hours and during school-related and school-sponsored activities. Exceptions include entry solely for the purposes of casting his vote, he is a student enrolled at the school, or he has obtained a court order allowing him to enter and has obtained permission of the school board or owner of the private school or day care. Persons prohibited may petition the circuit court for permission to enter such property.

A broad range of offenses are classified as crimes against property, including those having to do with taking property, with destroying property, and with wrongfully using or possessing property.

No more than $2,500 may be recovered from such parents or either of them as a result of any incident or occurrence on which such action is based.”

Additionally, Code of Virginia § 22.1-280.4 authorizes school boards to take action against a student or his parents:

“A school board may take action against a pupil or the pupil’s parent for any actual loss, breakage, or destruction of or failure to return property owned by or under the control of the school board, caused or committed by such pupil in pursuit of his studies. - the school system has provided the court with documentation that it has complied with all the provisions.

What disciplinary action can be taken for truancy?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-277 restricts the use of suspension for truancy: “Pupils may be suspended or expelled from attendance at school for sufficient cause, however, in no cases may sufficient cause for suspensions include only instances of truancy.”

What are Violations of Cell Phone Policy?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.6 authorizes local schools to regulate the use or possession of beepers or other portable communications devices and laser pointers by students on school property or attending school functions or activities and to establish related disciplinary procedures. In general, schools should have a policy in place to address appropriate use of cell phones that addresses permitted and prohibited uses; the policy can be included in the school division’s acceptable use policy (AUP) or student code of conduct. The policy needs to delineate clearly what is not acceptable and the consequences of violations of policy.

Training all staff in how to enforce the policy is important. They need to know what constitutes a violation, how to investigate incidents, when confiscating a cell phone is justified, the extent to which cell phones can be searched, and protocol for reporting incidents.

What computer/Internet use policies are schools required to have in place?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-70.2 requires schools and divisions to establish guidelines for appropriate technology use. These guidelines generally are called acceptable use policies (AUP). By definition, an AUP is a written agreement signed by students, their parents/caregivers, and their teachers. It outlines the terms and conditions for using technology-based devices maintained by schools and personal technology-based devices used during school hours on school property.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction is required to issue guidelines to school divisions regarding instructional programs related to Internet safety. Guidelines and Resources for Internet Safety in Schools at www.doe.virginia.gov/support/safety_crisis_management/internet_safety/guidelines_resources.pdf provides more detailed guidance on what school divisions must address, integrating Internet safety into curricula, and numerous Web-based Internet safety resources.

III. JUVENILE JUSTICE IN VIRGINIA

What is juvenile law?

Juvenile law is criminal law pertaining to persons not considered old enough to be held responsible for criminal acts they commit. Virginia, like most other states, has set the age for criminal accountability at 18; anyone less than 18 years of age is defined as a “juvenile.” Most laws governing juveniles are contained in Code of Virginia, Title 16.1.

What is the restorative nature of the juvenile justice system?

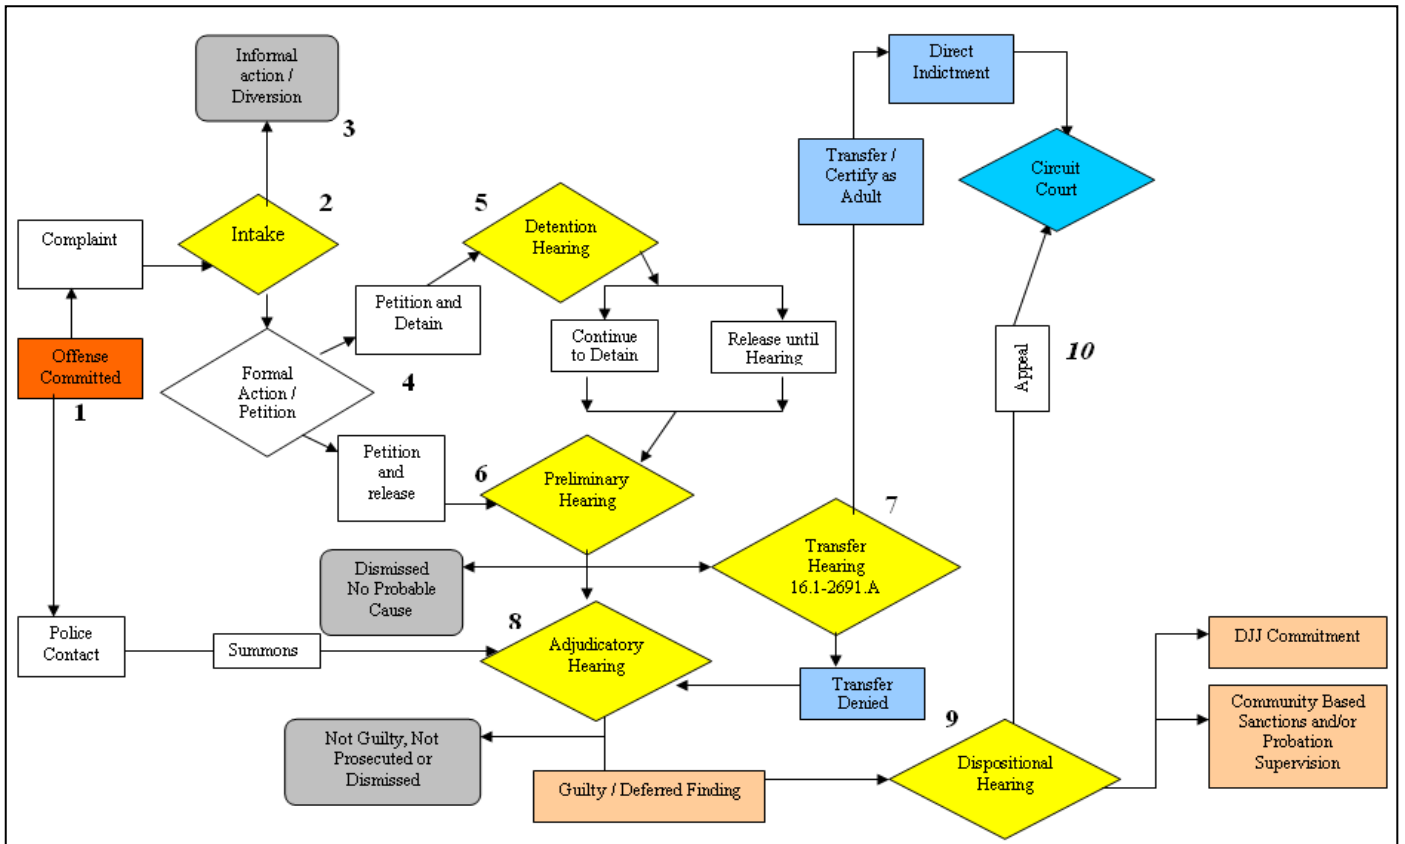

The juvenile justice system has a different purpose and treats juveniles differently than adults. The adult criminal justice system aims to incapacitate criminals, deter future offenders, and punish those who are convicted. In the juvenile system, rehabilitative and restorative sanctions are used much more frequently with the hope that a delinquent can be deterred from future criminality. Those juveniles who are charged with very serious crimes (usually violent felonies) may be transferred to adult court. This is rare and occurs in less than 1% of juvenile cases.

How is the juvenile justice system organized in Virginia?

The Juvenile Justice system in Virginia includes not only Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court (J&DR) in each District, but law enforcement agencies, detention centers, juvenile offenders programs, and juvenile correctional facilities.

How does the juvenile justice process operate in Virginia?

The flowchart below shows the juvenile justice process in Virginia:

Steps in the juvenile justice process in Virginia:

1. The juvenile enters the system when an offense is reported. For some offenses, such as minor traffic violations, law enforcement officers may issue a summons to court rather than initiating the intake process.
2. At juvenile court intake, the intake officer is authorized to (a) take informal action, or (b) take formal action and file a petition.

What is a juvenile court intake officer?

A juvenile court intake officer receives and reviews complaints regarding a child's delinquent behavior to the juvenile court, and determines whether there are enough facts to file a petition. These officers have the authority to handle these cases informally or detain the juvenile when necessary bringing the petition before a judge.

3. Informal actions may include referral to a crisis shelter, counseling, or other action to divert the case from the juvenile justice system. Diversion is sometimes used for first offenses and may involve the juvenile attending an educational program offered through the court.
4. If the intake officer decides to take formal action and file a petition, the intake officer will also determine whether the juvenile should be detained or released to his or her parents or guardians. The decision is based on the juvenile's risk to self or community and risk of flight.

What is detention?

Detention involves physically restraining or confining of an individual in a locked facility. In Virginia, a judge, intake officer, or magistrate may detain a juvenile for reasons prescribed by law. Detention is most often used to hold a juvenile pending a hearing. Juveniles are typically held in detention centers in Virginia.

5. If the decision is made to detain the juvenile, a detention hearing is held within 72 hours in the J&DR District Court to determine the need for further detention.

When can someone be detained?

A judge, intake officer, or magistrate must find probable cause that the juvenile has either committed a serious crime or violated conditions of his or her probation or parole, and there is clear and convincing evidence that releasing the juvenile would be a clear and substantial threat to the person or property of others or to the juvenile's life or health, the juvenile has threatened to run away, or is a fugitive from another state.

What is a detention center?

Detention centers, sometimes called detention homes, temporarily hold delinquents in secure custody pending court hearings. While at a detention center, detainees participate in structured programs, including school and recreational activities. Detained juveniles also receive medical and mental health screenings and services, may participate in religious activities, and may have supervised visits with parents or guardians. Detention is used to ensure juveniles are present for court without harming themselves or others while awaiting a court date. Under certain circumstances, a judge may sentence a juvenile to a detention center for up to 180 days as a sanction after the juvenile is found guilty of an offense.

6. A preliminary hearing is held to ensure the case has enough merit to continue. If no probable cause exists, the case is dismissed. If cause is determined, the case moves to the adjudicatory hearing.
7. Also during this preliminary phase, a transfer hearing may be held to decide whether a case should be transferred to Circuit Court for trial. Transfer may occur when a juvenile, 14 years of age or older, is alleged to have committed an especially serious crime and it is decided the juvenile should be tried as an adult.

Under what circumstances can a juvenile be tried as an adult?

If a juvenile is 14 years or older and charged with a felony offense, the Commonwealth may ask the juvenile court to transfer the case to the circuit court for trial as an adult. In most cases, the transfer decision is within the discretion of the court after considering the juvenile's age, the seriousness and number of offenses, prior record with the court, whether he or she has previously escaped, any degree of mental impairment, school record, and mental, emotional, and physical maturity. If the court decides that the juvenile can best be treated in the juvenile system, it can deny the transfer.

The Commonwealth's Attorneys has the discretion to transfer juveniles charged with violations of certain gang offenses and repeat violations of certain drug offenses to the circuit court for trial as an adult. Also, juveniles charged with an offense defined as an act of violence, if previously adjudicated delinquent of an act of violence, are automatically transferred to the circuit court for trial as an adult. However, if the charge is murder or aggravated malicious wounding, the court must transfer the case for trial as an adult. If the charge is one of several enumerated violent felonies, the discretion to transfer the case lies solely with the Commonwealth's Attorney.

8. At the adjudicatory hearing, witnesses and testimony are presented much like an adult trial and the judge decides whether the juvenile is guilty. If the juvenile is found not guilty, the case is dismissed. If the juvenile is found guilty, a dispositional hearing is held. Frequently, judges order a pre-disposition report to be prepared to assist in determining an appropriate disposition. The pre-disposition report contains extensive background information about the juvenile, his or her family and community environment, his or her school record, and services he or she may need.

What is an adjudicatory hearing?

The word adjudicate means to judge or pass judgment. In an adjudicatory hearing, the court hears the evidence in a case and determines whether the allegations contained in the complaint are supported by the evidence. In criminal cases, there is a determination of whether the defendant is guilty.

9. At the dispositional hearing, the judge decides appropriate sanctions and services. Sanction means a penalty for not complying with a law or other rule. The judge may impose community sanctions such as warnings, restitution, or fines. The juvenile may also be placed on probation, required to participate in programs sponsored by the court or community agencies, or placed in post-dispositional detention.

What is a dispositional hearing?

The word disposition means the manner in which a case is settled or resolved. In a dispositional hearing, the court considers and selects penalties and services appropriate for an offender. It is important to remember that the juvenile justice system is concerned not only with punishment, but also with rehabilitation. For example, a court may not only place an offender on probation and order restitution, but also order him or her to participate in counseling or another program to address underlying problems.

What is restitution?

Restitution describes the act of restoration. It means an offender is required to repay money to the victim or take other action to restore the victim to his or her status before the criminal act. For example, someone who destroys the property of another may be required to pay the cost of repair or replacement, such as when a school building has been vandalized. The basic purpose of restitution is to achieve fairness.

What does probation mean?

Probation means the offender is allowed a period of time to show he or she has learned from his or her mistakes and can behave. During this period, offenders are supervised by the court, obey rules of probation, and report to a probation officer who closely monitors conduct. If an offender abides by the conditions, he or she is released from probation. If an offender does not abide by the proscribed conditions, he or she may be brought before a judge, who may impose more severe penalties.

Once the requirements have been met, the juvenile is released by the court. The judge may also decide to commit the juvenile to the Department of Juvenile Justice, where he or she will undergo psychological, educational, social, and medical evaluations and be placed in a residential facility or a juvenile correctional center. Juveniles who complete their commitment and return to their home communities are usually supervised by the court.

What is a juvenile correctional center?

A juvenile correctional center is a place where a juvenile committed to the Virginia Department of Juvenile Justice receives 24-hour supervision, education, treatment services, recreational services, and a variety of special programs.

10. A case may be sent into the appeals process following the dispositional hearing. The Circuit Court may also receive a case through direct indictment.

More in-depth information about J&DR Courts is available in a fact sheet from the Virginia Supreme Court (www.courts.state.va.us/courts/jdr/jdrinfo.pdf).

At the state level, the Virginia Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) has primary responsibility for Virginia's system of juvenile justice services (www.djj.virginia.gov).

What are Court Services Units (CSUs)?

At the local level, access to the juvenile justice system is through the local court service unit (CSU). Thirty-five CSUs serve the Judicial Districts throughout Virginia. Descriptions and contact information for each of the 35 CSUs can be found on the DJJ website. CSUs assist with all steps in the juvenile justice process.

What are the essential functions of the CSU throughout the Commonwealth?

Juvenile Intake – Intake services are provided 24 hours a day at each of the 35 court service units across the state. The intake officer on duty, or on call after business hours, has the authority to receive, review, and process complaints. Based on the information gathered, a determination is made whether a petition should be filed with the juvenile court and, if so, whether the juvenile should be released to the parents or detained pending a court hearing. The CSU provides diversion and referral to other community resources to most first-time offenders.

Investigations and Reports – Social histories make up the majority of the reports that CSU personnel complete. These court-ordered investigations describe the social adjustment of the youth and provide timely, relevant, and accurate data. This information helps the court select the most appropriate disposition for the case and provides the basis for the CSU to develop appropriate services for the juvenile and the family. Other reports and investigations completed by CSU personnel include case summaries to the Family Assessment and Planning Teams, commitment packets for the Reception and Diagnostic Center, interstate compact reports, transfer reports, parole transition reports, ongoing case documentation, and transitional services referral packets.

Domestic Relations – In addition to handling delinquency and Child in Need of Service (CHINS)/Supervision complaints, CSUs provide intake services for domestic relations complaints. These complaints include non-support, family abuse, adjudication of custody (permanent and temporary), abuse and neglect, termination of parental rights, visitation rights, paternity, and emancipation. In some CSUs, services such as treatment referral, supervision, and counseling are provided in adult cases of domestic violence.

Custody Investigations – Although the majority of custody investigations for the court are performed by the local Department of Social Services’ staff, some CSUs also perform investigations to provide recommendations to the court on parental custody and visitation based on the best interests of the youth and defined criteria in the Virginia Code. This investigation includes an extensive review of the home environment, examining the background, role, and relationship of the youth’s parent(s) or caretaker(s) along with any individuals living in the home.

Supervised Probation – Supervised Probation is the most frequently used sentence for juveniles adjudicated as guilty of a charge filed against them. This approach focuses on the principles of community protection (public safety), accountability, and competency development.

Parole Services – Upon release from a juvenile correction center (JCC) or private placement setting, individuals are provided parole services to assist in the transition back to the community. Parole officers are assigned to offenders to provide case management services, broker appropriate transitional services, and monitor the offender’s adjustment to the community. These individuals may receive family and individual counseling, referral to other community services, vocational services, or specialized educational services.

What is the procedure for re-enrolling students who have been in juvenile correctional facilities?

The Code of Virginia §22.1-17.1 establishes the responsibility of the Board of Education, in cooperation with the Department of Juvenile Justice to publicize regulations for the re-enrollment in the public schools of youth who have been in the custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice. The regulations promote the exchange of educational information concerning students among the Departments of Juvenile Justice and Correctional Education (DCE), local and regional detention homes, and local education agencies (LEAs).

The regulations are intended to:

- best serve all parties, including the student, their family, schools, and the criminal justice system;
- coordinate the sharing of information between entities;
- provide the best possible education experience to juveniles.

RESOURCES

The procedures for re-enrollment, its timelines, and FAQs for various audiences are set forth on the Virginia Department of Education’s website at www.doe.virginia.gov/support/student_family/re-enrollment.

How are juvenile criminal records expunged?

Expungement of criminal records is a key element of juvenile justice. Virginia Code § 16.1-306 defines how and when juvenile records are expunged. If a juvenile is convicted of an offense prior to turning 18, their non-felony records are automatically expunged when they turn 19. There are a number of exceptions but for most minor crimes, juvenile records are purged.

What do the terms “Child in Need of Services” and “Child in Need of Supervision” mean?

A Child in Need of Services (CHINS) is a child whose behavior, conduct, or condition poses a risk of harm to himself or another person. A child who is alleged to be abused or neglected is typically considered a child in need of services.

A Child in Need of Supervision (CHINSup) is a child who is habitually absent from school (truant) or who abandons his family or guardian (runaway) in a manner that requires intervention by the court to protect the child’s welfare.

IV. SCHOOL SAFETY

A. The School Safety Audit

What is the School Safety Audit?

The Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8 establishes requirements for school safety audits and defines a school safety audit as:

“a written assessment of the safety conditions in each public school to (i) identify and, if necessary, develop solutions for physical safety concerns, including building security issues and (ii) identify and evaluate any patterns of student safety concerns occurring on school property or at school-sponsored events. Solutions and responses shall include recommendations for structural adjustments, changes in school safety procedures, and revisions to the school board’s standards for student conduct.”

School boards must mandate that all schools under the board’s supervisory control are to conduct school safety audits annually.

What are the Components of the School Safety Audit?

The Virginia Center for School and Campus Safety (VCSCS) in the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) has been designated to collect, analyze, and disseminate various Virginia school safety data including school safety audit information. The School Safety Audit Program in Virginia includes five components:

1. Virginia School Safety Survey (administered annually)

Each year, the Virginia Center for School and Campus Safety administers the web-based Virginia School Safety Survey to collect school safety audit information from all public schools, kindergarten through 12th grade. Principals are responsible for completing the surveys. The information collected allows VCSCS and state policy makers to describe school safety policies, practices, and conditions in Virginia’s public schools.

2. The Division Level Survey (administered as needed)

As needed, the VCSCS administers the web-based Division Level Safety Survey to collect division-wide information from all public school divisions in the Commonwealth. Superintendents are responsible for completing the survey. The information collected allows VCSCS and state policy makers to describe school safety policies, practices, and conditions in Virginia’s public schools.

3. Virginia School Crisis Management Plan Review and Certification (annually)

In accordance with Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8, by August 31 of each year the division Superintendent shall certify that all schools in his/her division completed a written school crisis, emergency management, and medical emergency response plan, referred to as the Crisis Management Plan, and that these plans were approved by the local school board. The school board shall also provide copies of these plans to the local chief law enforcement officer, fire chief, chief emergency medical services official, and an emergency management official. The Crisis Management Plans over events such as

- natural disasters,
- loss or disruption of power, water, communications, or shelter;
- bus or other accidents;
- medical emergencies, including student or staff deaths;
- explosions, bomb threats, or gun, knife, or other weapons threats;
- spills or exposures to hazardous substances;

- the presence of unauthorized persons or trespassers;
- the loss, disappearance, or kidnapping of a student, or hostage situations;
- violence on school property or at school activities;
- incidents involving acts of terrorism; and
- other incidents posing a serious threat of harm to students, personnel, or facilities.

4. Virginia Secondary School Climate Survey (administered in the Spring)

In accordance with Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8, the VCSCS is required to survey the overall climate and safety conditions of schools in Virginia. In order to achieve this mandate, the Secondary School Climate Survey began in the spring of 2013 by surveying all 7th and 8th grade students and teachers in the Commonwealth. In the spring of 2014, all 9th–12th grade students and teachers were surveyed. This pattern of alternating survey approaches will continue. The anonymous survey provides schools with an insight into student and teacher perceptions of school rules and discipline, teacher-student relationships, student engagement, and other safety and climate issues.

5. The School Safety Inspection Checklist (due Fall 2017)

As a result of the 2013 Governor’s School and Campus Safety Task Force, legislative updates were made to Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8. One such update was the required School Safety Inspection Checklist. All public schools in Virginia are required to complete a school building safety inspection using a standardized walk-through checklist. Every three years, the Division Superintendent will collect all checklists from the division and certify their completion to VCSCS by August 31 of that year. The first checklist certification was due to VCSCS in 2014. The completed checklists shall be made available to the chief law enforcement officer of the locality upon request.

Is the Safety Audit a “Written Assessment”?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8 defines the safety audit (to be conducted each year by school principals) as a “written assessment” of safety conditions in every public school.

To meet the requirement for a “written assessment,” each school should

- conduct a review of all components of the safety audit (safety survey, building inspection checklist, crisis plan, DCV data, and climate survey, where appropriate);
- identify areas of concern;
- identify any needed changes;
- identify safety concerns and solutions
- complete the template, or a similar document, provided on the audit website; and
- submit the completed template to the division safety audit committee and/or the Superintendent by December 31 of each year.

What materials can be omitted from an audit report?

Pursuant to Code of Virginia § 2.2-3705.2(7), schools may exclude security plans and specific vulnerability assessments from disclosure to the public. This exclusion option is to prevent potentially dangerous information from being available to those who may wish to commit criminal acts. In the Safety Audit Template, and in any audit component, these portions are noted.

School Safety Audit Template– www.dcjs.virginia.gov/sites/dcjs.virginia.gov/files/publications/law-enforcement/school-safety-audit-template-schools.docx

What is a School Safety Audit Committee?

The Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8 specifies that each division superintendent must create a school safety audit committee which will review audits and make recommendations to the superintendent regarding improving school safety. The audit committee reviews the school safety audits from all schools in the division. The safety audit committee should then make recommendations for improving school safety to the Superintendent and/or school board. VCSCS created a template to assist in this process. Once the superintendent and/or school board has reviewed the recommendations, the Superintendent will certify audit completion to the Virginia Center for School and Campus Safety by the end of August each year. This certification will be due in August 31, 2017, and each year thereafter.

Who Serves on the School Safety Audit Committee?

The committee should include:

- a parent,
- a teacher,
- a local law enforcement representative,
- an emergency services agency representative,
- a local community services board representative, and

Are there any other new requirements for school divisions?

Yes, new requirements added to the Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.8 and § 22.1-137.2 include:

- developing a school safety audit committee,
- designating an emergency manager, and
- conducting lock down drills.

What are an emergency manager’s responsibilities?

The school division emergency manager plays an important role in both responding to events and preparing for possible crises. The emergency manager should be prepared to serve as liaison between school personnel and first responders, coordinate resources and implement response plans, and distribute information to communicate with parents and community members. Emergency managers can prepare for crises through drills, checklists, audits, planning, and other activities.

The emergency manager is also responsible for reporting emergencies to the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services via the following website: www.dcjs.virginia.gov/victims-services/report-campus-local-emergency.

For guidance from VCSCS on designating an emergency manager and suggested responsibilities, visit:

www.dcjs.virginia.gov/sites/dcjs.virginia.gov/files/publications/law-enforcement/virginia-educators-guide-conducting-emergency-drills.pdf

What are Lockdown Drills?

All public schools in Virginia are required to conduct lockdown drills each year. A lockdown drill is an exercise to prepare schools for a critical incident, particularly an active shooter within a school. During these exercises, schools lockdown entrances, classrooms, and students. Staff follow a plan of shelter-in-place or evacuation, depending on the circumstances and school policy. Although lockdown drill exercises are required by law, other types of emergency drills, including evacuation and shelter-in-place drills should also be conducted. The purpose of any emergency drill is to prepare students, staff, and first responders to cope with an actual crisis and simultaneously assess and improve existing plans.

A lockdown drill is different than a fire drill. In a lockdown drill, doors are closed and, when appropriate, locked, students are directed out of halls and open areas into closed and supervised areas, and security procedures are enhanced. During a fire drill, all students, staff, and personnel must leave the building in an orderly fashion.

During the 2016 General Assembly session, the Virginia Code was amended to require every public school to hold a lock-down drill at least twice during the first 20 school days of each school session and at least two additional lock-down drills during the remainder of the school session.

However, Section 8VAC20-131-260 of the Board of Education’s Regulations Establishing Standards for Accrediting Public Schools in Virginia (Standards of Accreditation) requires that every public school conduct at least two simulated lock-down drills and crisis emergency evacuation activities each school year, one in September and one in January. Therefore, in order to comply with the Code of Virginia and the Standards of Accreditation, every public school will need to conduct two lock-down drills during the first 20 days of school – one of which must occur in September – and two additional lock-down drills during the remainder of the school year – one of which must occur in January.

The Virginia Code was also amended to require every public school to hold a fire drill at least twice during the first 20 school days of each school session and at least two additional fire drills during the remainder of the school session. The State Fire Marshall, however, advises that the Virginia Statewide Fire Prevention Code has a more stringent requirement of an initial fire drill within the first 10 days of the school session and one fire drill per month. However, Section 8VAC20-131-260 of the Standards of Accreditation requires that every public school conduct fire drills at least once a week during the first month of school and at least once each month for the remainder of the school year. Therefore, in order to comply with the Standards of Accreditation, every public school will still need to conduct at least one fire drill per week during the first month of school and at least one fire drill each month for the remainder of the school year.

| | Lockdown Drills | Fire Drills |
|---------------------------------|---|---|
| First 20 days of School | At least twice during the first 20 days of school (one must occur in September) | One per week during the first month of school |
| Remainder of School Year | At least two additional lockdown drills (one must occur in January) | Once a month |

Following an emergency, when and how should schools contact authorities?

During an emergency or crisis, the safety of students and school personnel is paramount. First responders (law enforcement, fire, emergency medical services) should be contacted immediately. Once persons are safe and first responders are notified, schools should contact the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services to initiate victim assistance procedures. These resources include: victim advocates, counseling, access to the victims’ compensation fund, and other programs.

B. Threat Assessment

What is a Threat?

According to the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services Model Policies, Procedures, and Guidelines:

“A threat is a concerning communication or behavior that suggests a person may intend to harm someone else. The threat may be spoken, written, or gestured and is considered a threat regardless of whether it is observed or communicated directly to the target of the threat or observed by or communicated to a third party and regardless of whether the target of the threat is aware of the threat existing in any fashion, whether orally, visually, in writing, or electronically.”

Are there different levels of threats?

The VCSCS identifies threats as low risk, moderate risk, high risk, and imminent.

- A low risk threat is one in which the person/situation does not appear to pose a threat of violence and any underlying issues can be resolved easily.
- A moderate risk threat is one in which the person/situation does not appear to pose a threat of violence at this time but exhibits behaviors that indicate a continuing intent to harm and potential for future violence.
- A high risk threat is one in which the person/situation appears to pose a threat of violence, exhibiting behaviors that indicate both a continuing intent to harm and efforts to acquire the capacity to carry out the plan.
- An imminent threat exists when the person/situation appears to pose a clear and immediate threat of serious violence toward others that requires containment and action to protect identified target(s).

What is Threat Assessment?

A threat assessment is a fact-based process relying primarily on an appraisal of behaviors to identify potentially dangerous or violent situations and address them. The primary purposes of student threat assessment are to:

- reduce the risk of violence;
- ensure a prepared response;
- reduce liability exposure; and
- instill public confidence that schools can keep students, staff, and personnel safe.

Threat assessment was originally developed by the U.S. Secret Service after a series of school shootings. In 2004, a joint report of the U.S. Secret Service and U.S. Department of Education entitled The Final Report and Findings of the Safe School Initiative: Implications for the Prevention of School Attacks in the United States recommended that schools train threat assessment teams in order to respond to student threats of violence.

What must schools do regarding threat assessments?

According to the Code of Virginia § 22.1-79.4, every school board:

- must have policies in place to conduct threat assessments of persons (students and non-students) who appear dangerous;
- must have a referral process in those policies;
- must assemble a threat assessment team;
- must convey the findings of the threat assessment team to the superintendent; and
- must report quantitative data on threat assessment proceedings to the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services.

 RESOURCES

In Fall 2016, DCJS debuted an informational video entitled K12 Threat Assessment in VA: A Prevention Overview for School Staff, Parents, and Community Members. The purpose of the video is to summarize threat assessment Virginia for school staff, parents, students, and community members. The video is available at: www.dcjs.virginia.gov/publication-link/k12-threat-assessment-video

What is a threat assessment team?

The threat assessment team shall

- provide guidance to students, faculty, and staff regarding recognition of threatening or aberrant behavior that may represent a threat to the community,
- identify members of the school community to whom threatening behavior should be reported, and
- implement the policies adopted by the school board.

The superintendent of each school division appoints this committee and the team may serve one or more schools. Persons to be included must have expertise in human resources, education, school administration, mental health, and law enforcement.

What does a student “threat assessment” involve?

The threat assessment process is designed to identify and assess risks in a deliberate and thorough manner. In determining response strategies to mitigate the risk and to provide assistance, as needed, it is helpful to classify threats by level. Based on the information collected, the threat assessment team may classify threats using the following basic criteria:

| Threat Levels | Criteria |
|----------------------|---|
| Low risk threat | person/situation does not appear to pose a threat of violence and any underlying issues can be resolved easily. |
| Moderate risk threat | person/situation does not appear to pose a threat of violence at this time but exhibits behaviors that indicate a continuing intent to harm and potential for future violence. |
| High risk threat | person/situation appears to pose a threat of violence, exhibiting behaviors that indicate both a continuing intent to harm and efforts to acquire the capacity to carry out the plan. |
| Imminent threat | person/situation appears to pose a clear and immediate threat of serious violence toward others that requires containment and action to protect identified target(s). |

In general, steps to conducting a threat assessment include the following:

1. Evaluate and classify threat.
2. Determine whether a threat has been made or posed.
3. If threat has been made, respond appropriately (e.g., reprimand or other disciplinary action).
4. If threat has been posed, determine whether low, moderate, high or imminent.
5. Based on classification (see criteria above) apply response strategies.
6. If high or imminent, conduct a safety evaluation – immediately take precautions to protect potential victim(s), consult with law enforcement, notify parents, begin a mental health evaluation, take appropriate disciplinary action.
7. Implement a safety plan – written plan; maintain contact with student; revise plan as needed.

Are schools required to take action if a student is thought to be possibly suicidal?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-272.1 requires licensed school personnel who have reason to believe a student is at imminent risk of suicide, to contact, as soon as practicable, at least one of the student’s parents. If the student has indicated parental abuse or neglect, contact with the parent is not to be made and social services is to be notified.

This program, Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST) for Trainers, produces certified trainers who can then work with schools, public safety, or other agencies. Visit the DBHDS website at www.dbhds.virginia.gov for more information.

What information is available to threat assessment teams established by local school boards?

2016 Virginia legislation (HB 1013) provides that, upon a preliminary determination by the threat assessment team that an individual poses a threat of violence to self or others or exhibits significantly disruptive behavior or need for assistance, a threat assessment team may obtain criminal record, juvenile record, and health record information. This is now consistent with the procedures in higher education. Threat assessment team members must not share this information with anyone beyond the purposes of the threat assessment.

Are threat assessment team records discoverable through the Freedom of Information Act?

No. Virginia legislation (HB 1013) specifically excludes from mandatory disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) records received by the Department of Criminal Justice Services as part of threat assessment, school safety audits, and school crisis, emergency management, and medical emergency response plans of public schools to the extent that such records reveal security plans, walk-through checklists, or vulnerability and threat assessment components.

In addition, information held by a threat assessment team relating to the assessment or intervention with a specific individual is excluded from mandatory disclosure under the FOIA. However, if an individual who had been under assessment commits certain violent acts, any records created by the team shall be made publicly available. The personally identifying information of any person who provided information to the threat assessment team under a promise of confidentiality must be removed prior to such disclosure.

Are school personnel protected if they alert authorities to a potentially dangerous student?

Virginia legislation extends civil immunity to any person who reports, with good faith, information that an individual poses credible danger of serious bodily injury or death to one or more students, school personnel, or others on school property. Code of Virginia § 8.01-47 extends the protections afforded to school personnel who provide information to authorities regarding potentially dangerous persons.

C. School Safety Personnel

Who is charged with keeping our schools safe?

In addition to traditional school personnel – administration, staff, and teachers – schools also have designated assistance to ensure safety: School Resource Officers and School Security Officers.

What is a school resource officer?

A school resource officer is a sworn law enforcement officer who is assigned, by their hiring agency, to work at a school either full- or part-time. School resource officer (SRO) is defined in Code of Virginia § 9.1-101 as follows:

“School resource officer means a certified law-enforcement officer hired by the local law-enforcement agency to provide law-enforcement and security services to Virginia public elementary and secondary schools.”

What do school resource officers do?

In accordance with the statutory definition, SROs provide law-enforcement and security services in Virginia public elementary and secondary schools. The specific duties and responsibilities, as well as basic operational procedures, are typically defined in a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) or other written agreement between the school division and the local law enforcement agency.

The Virginia SRO program model identifies the primary role as law enforcement, which includes crime prevention and school safety activities. Additional recognized roles include law-related educator, community liaison (especially related to the juvenile justice system), and role model.

As of 2014 (as reported by the 2014 Virginia School Safety Audit), 81% of all schools in Virginia used SROs. SROs were assigned to 99% of high schools, 90% of middle schools, and 27% of elementary schools, respectively.

What is a school security officer?

A school security officer (SSO) is an employee of the local school system and is defined in Code of Virginia § 9.1-101 as:

“School security officer means an individual who is employed by the local school board for the singular purpose of maintaining order and discipline, preventing crime, investigating violations of school board policies, and detaining students violating the law or school board policies on school property or at school-sponsored events and who is responsible solely for ensuring the safety, security, and welfare of all students, faculty, staff, and visitors in the assigned school.”

What do school security officers do?

In accordance with the statutory definition, SSOs have a primary responsibility to maintain order and discipline. SSOs are employed by the school division and their specific duties and responsibilities are prescribed by the employer.

Examples of typical SSO responsibilities include patrolling school buildings and grounds to ensure compliance with school rules and regulations, greeting visitors to ensure compliance with established visitor procedures, reporting any out-of-the-ordinary incidents or conditions, reporting school conduct violations and crimes in accordance with school policies and state laws, taking authorized action to protect persons and property, and participating in school safety and crisis response planning and action.

SSOs must meet requirements for SSO Certification issued through the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services.

Additional information about the SSO Certification Program can be obtained from the Virginia Center for School and Campus Safety at www.dcjs.virginia.gov/virginia-center-school-and-campus-safety.

How do the roles of SROs and SSOs compare?

| School Resource Officer | School Security Officer |
|---|--|
| 1. A law enforcement agency employee | 1. A school employee |
| 2. Complying with federal, state, and local statutes | 2. Complying with and guided by local school policies and regulations |

| 7. Search must be in accordance with state and federal law; search typically requires probable cause. | 7. Can search students and others based upon reasonable suspicion |
| 8. Laws and custody requirement procedures apply | 8. May detain and question students |
| 9. Acts under the standards of law | 9. Acts in absence of parents (in loco parentis) |
| 10. Use of force is permissible as guided by department policy | 10. Use of force should be limited and only used in accordance with local school policy |

V. SEARCH AND SEIZURE

Under what circumstances can a student be searched?

It is important to recognize that all searches entail an invasion of privacy. Whether a particular search is legally permissible involves a balancing of competing interests: the individual student's right to privacy and security against the school division's interests in maintaining order, discipline, and the security and safety of other students.

Best practice involves coherence in school division mission statement, student conduct policy, search policy, and procedures for implementing searches. The mission statement should clearly articulate the school division's commitment to provide a safe and disciplined school environment conducive to learning. Consistent with the mission statement, the student conduct policy should define expectations and rules, including privacy expectations. Virginia law requires written notice of the student conduct policy to students and their parents; best practice is to notify, or otherwise make available, the written school policy on student searches also.

Are there different types of searches?

Yes. Searches can be categorized as follows:

- blanket and random administrative searches;
- warrantless or reasonable suspicion searches;
- consent searches; and
- law enforcement searches based on probable cause.

What are blanket and random administrative searches?

Blanket and random administrative searches are typically conducted to serve as a deterrent in the interest of maintaining safe and drug-free schools. These random searches, including group searches, may be conducted only in accordance with formally adopted school board policies which include procedures to ensure that searches are conducted in a neutral fashion. Random locker searches, metal detector screenings, and use of drug-detection canines are examples of blanket searches.

What are best practices in conducting blanket and random searches?

Key best practices involve written notice to students (reducing expectations of privacy) and procedures which ensure that the searches are conducted in a random, systematic, nonselective manner in accordance with a pre-determined plan.

| Type of Search | Best Practices |
|---|---|
| Locker searches | Notice: Written policies and periodic notice to students (and their parents) which make it clear that the school retains ownership and control of the locker and that the student's use of the locker does not constitute exclusive possession. Neutral plan: Procedures/documentation which ensure a neutral blanket screening or random search. |
| Use of metal detectors at school entrances | Notice: Written policies and notice to students (and their parents) which makes it clear that persons entering the school are subject to metal detector screening. In addition, written warning notices should be posted conspicuously at the entrances of the school to notify visitors that they will be subject to this form of inspection. |

|---|---|
| | Neutral plan: Procedures that carefully limit the discretion of school employees who operate metal detectors and that provide a very detailed script for these employees to follow as they search for weapons. |
| Use of drug detection canines | Notice: Periodic written notice that trained drug-detection canines may be used. Requires planning and sensitivity to limit direct contact with students. Neutral plan: Canine sniffs of student lockers in a sweeping fashion do not initially constitute a “search.” If however, the dog alerts to a specific locker, then individualized suspicion to search the specific locker exists. Likewise, using dogs to sniff around student automobiles in a sweep of the school parking lot does not ordinarily constitute a search. Educational policy considerations regarding the health and psychological well-being of students also come into play when police-trained dogs are brought near students in schools. Sound educational judgment should be used in deciding whether, when, and under what circumstances drug sniffing dogs will be used in schools. |

What is a warrantless or reasonable suspicion search?

A warrantless or reasonable suspicion search is based on suspicion of either a criminal offense or a violation of school rules and is conducted with a view to discovery of evidence of the offense or violation. The search can be for contraband (e.g., drugs, alcohol, explosives or fireworks, and/or prohibited weapons); an instrument used to commit an offense or school rule violation (e.g., a weapon used to assault or threaten another); the fruits or spoils of an offense or school rule violation (e.g., the cash proceeds of a drug sale, gambling profits, or a stolen item) or other evidence of an offense or school rule violation (e.g., gambling slips, hate pamphlets, records of drug or illegal gambling debts, etc.).

How is a warrantless or reasonable suspicion search initiated?

To initiate a lawful search, a school official must have reasonable grounds to believe that:

- a law or school rule has been or is being broken;
- a particular student(s) has committed the violation or infraction;
- the suspected violation or infraction is of a kind for which there may be physical evidence (e.g., contraband, instrumentality, fruits or spoils, or other evidence); and
- the sought-after evidence would be found in a particular place associated with the student(s) suspected of committing the violation or infraction.

What is reasonableness?

In order for a search to be reasonable, a school official must satisfy two separate inquiries:

- Was the search justified at its inception?
- Was the search conducted in an appropriate manner, that is, was the actual search reasonable in its scope, duration, and intensity?

A search is constitutionally permissible at its inception when the school official has reasonable grounds based on the totality of the known circumstances for suspecting that the search will reveal evidence that the student has violated or is violating either the law or the rules of the school. Reasonable grounds are more than a mere hunch or unsubstantiated rumor.

A search will be reasonable in its scope and intensity where it is reasonably related to the objectives of the search and is not excessively intrusive in light of the age and sex of the student and the nature of the suspected infraction.

It is important to note, according to a 2010 Virginia Attorney General Opinion (10-105), that electronic devices, such as laptops and cell phones, are permitted to be searched by school officials when based on the reasonable suspicion that the particular student is violating the law or the rules of the school.

The legal standard for searches on school grounds extends from the Supreme Court ruling New Jersey vs. TLO, 469 U.S. 325 (1985), in which the court ruled that school officials can search students when that student has violated either the law or school policy and the school has reasonable suspicion that additional evidence of malfeasance exists and is held by the student. Reasonable suspicion is defined as: “[R]easonable grounds for suspecting that the search will turn up evidence that the student has violated or is violating either the law or the rules of the school.”

Reasonableness is predicated on clearly explicated school rules and policies. For example, if a school policy exists that precludes possession of cell phones and a student is found with a cell phone, the student has violated school policy. A search of the cell phone, however, would only be permissible if school officials reasonably believe the student has engaged in additional wrongdoing (like cyberbullying or sexting).

What is a consent search?

A consent search of a student exists when a student grants the school official permission to search. A student’s consent is valid only if given willingly and with knowledge of the meaning of consent. School officials have the burden of proving that the search was voluntary and documenting all aspects of obtaining permission to search.

A school official may ask for permission to conduct a search, even if the official does not have reasonable grounds to believe that the search would reveal evidence of an offense/ infraction. A student’s refusal to give permission may not be considered as evidence of guilt. If the school official already has reasonable suspicion to believe that evidence of an offense/infraction will be found in a particular place, school officials need not rely on consent being given and may conduct a search of that location even over a student’s objection.

When can a school resource officer (SRO) search a student?

SROs are law enforcement officers and searches by SROs must be based on the higher standard of probable cause rather than the reasonable suspicion standard for school administrator searches. Put simply, probable cause means a reasonable belief that a person has committed a crime.

As a matter of practice, the MOU between the school division and the local law enforcement agency should define and clarify the responsibilities of the school resource officer related to school searches. In general, the MOU should clarify:

- that any search by a school resource officer shall be based upon probable cause and, it is recommended that a search warrant will be obtained unless exigent circumstances are present;
- that the school resource officer shall not become involved in administrative searches unless specifically requested by the school to provide security, protection, or handle contraband; and
- that at no time should the SRO request that an administrative search be conducted for law enforcement purposes or have the administrator act as his or her agent.

When can a school security officer (SSO) search a student?

SSOs are school employees who serve under the guidance of the principal. SSOs are under the same search requirements as school officials; however, SSOs are not typically the persons designated by the principal to conduct student searches. Because SSOs can assist school officials in conducting student searches, they should be trained in appropriate search procedures and knowledgeable of laws and policy that govern student searches.

Are there any special considerations when school officials encounter child pornography?

According to the 2010 Virginia Attorney General Opinion (10-105), “Upon discovery of potential child pornography, the teacher or principal should promptly contact the appropriate law-enforcement agency within his jurisdiction and turn the material over to one of its authorized agents without distributing the material to others.” This action reduces the risk of exposure of the child to other individuals and also reduces the forensic chain of custody.

For more information on school searches, see the Virginia Department of Education’s Virginia School Search Resource Guide at www.doe.virginia.gov/boe/guidance/safety/school_searches.pdf.

A new guide addressing searches in schools will be available on the Virginia Center for School and Campus Safety website in the near future. It will be known as the School/Police Partnership Implementation Guide. This guide will inform school administrators, decision makers, and public safety personnel on the scope and parameters of searches in schools and law enforcement authority. A model MOU will also be included in the new Guide.

Is student drug testing permissible?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.6 states that “a school board may, in its discretion, require or encourage drug testing in accordance with the Board of Education’s guidelines and model student conduct policies.” The state statutory provisions do not require the adoption of drug testing programs by local school boards, but allow school boards to decide whether drug testing will be encouraged or required. The Virginia Department of Education advises:

“The question of whether to test students for drugs involves myriad complex issues that must be fully understood and carefully weighted before testing begins... Before implementing a drug testing program, local school boards should consult with legal counsel familiar with the laws regarding student drug testing.”

For more in-depth information about drug testing in schools, see the Virginia Department of Education’s guidance at www.doe.virginia.gov/boe/guidance/health/drug_testing_guidelines.pdf.

VI. ISSUES AND TOPICS

A. Student Conduct

What responsibilities do schools have for student conduct?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-253.13:7 requires that school boards assemble and maintain policies which provide effective learning environments, stipulating that “[t]he standards of student conduct and attendance and enforcement procedures designed to provide that public education be conducted in an atmosphere free of disruption and threat to persons or property and supportive of individual rights.”

Section 22.1-78 of the Code authorizes local school boards to adopt by-laws and regulations “for its own government, for the management of its official business and for the supervision of schools, including but not limited to the proper discipline of students, including their conduct going to and returning from school.”

Section 22.1-279.6.B of the Code requires local school boards to adopt and revise regulations on codes of student conduct that are consistent with, but may be more stringent than, the guidelines of the Board. School boards are required to include procedures for suspension, expulsion, and exclusion decisions, to biennially review student conduct code guidelines, and to include prohibitions against hazing and profane or obscene language or conduct. School boards are authorized to regulate certain communications devices and, at their discretion, require or encourage drug testing.

Section 22.1-279.6.D of the Code requires local school boards to include a prohibition against bullying in its code of student conduct policies and procedures. The policies and procedures should be consistent with the standards for school board policies on bullying developed by the Board of Education and direct the principal to notify the parent of any student involved in an alleged incident of bullying of the status of any investigation within five school days of the allegation.

Section 22.1-279.9 of the Code requires school boards, in cooperation with the local law enforcement agencies, juvenile and domestic relations court judges and personnel, parents, and the community-at-large, to develop programs to prevent violence and crime on school property and at school-sponsored events.

What are the Virginia Tiered Systems of Support?

The Virginia Tiered Systems of Supports (VTSS) is a data-driven decision making framework for establishing the academic, behavioral and social-emotional supports needed for a school to be an effective learning environment for all students. The VTSS systemic approach allows divisions, schools and communities to provide multiple levels of supports to students in a more effective and efficient, clearly defined process. Implementing the VTSS requires the use of evidence-based, system-wide practices with fidelity to provide a quick response to academic, behavioral, social and emotional needs. The practices are progress-monitored frequently to enable educators to make sound, data-based instructional decisions for students. More information is available at: www.doe.virginia.gov/support/virginia_tiered_system_supports/index.shtml.

What are Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports?

Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports (PBIS) is a nationally-recognized approach to support positive academic and behavioral outcomes for all students. In Virginia schools, PBIS is the behavioral component of the Virginia Tiered Systems of Supports (VTSS). PBIS helps teachers and administrators learn about and implement new techniques that reduce disruptive student behavior, which typically leads to office referrals, in school suspensions, and out-of-school suspensions that decrease instructional time for students. Based on extensive research, PBIS utilizes a positive approach to discipline. PBIS is not a specific intervention or curriculum. Through focused attention on data collection and analyses, PBIS provides a framework of proactive, evidence-based prevention and intervention behavioral strategies that aid schools in defining, teaching, and supporting appropriate student behaviors in a positive school culture.

The Virginia Department of Education provides an overview and links on PBIS at:
www.doe.virginia.gov/support/virginia_tiered_system_supports/positive_behavior/index.shtml

What are discipline procedures when the student is in special education?

Requirements related to students with disabilities are contained under “8VAC20-81-160. Discipline procedures.” The Department of Education has guidance and resources on this topic:
www.doe.virginia.gov/special_ed/index.shtml.

In addition, refer to the Virginia Department of Education’s Guidance Document on the Implementation of the Regulations Governing Special Education Programs for Children with Disabilities in Virginia, 2009 at www.doe.virginia.gov/special_ed/regulations/state/regs_speced_disability_va_guidance.pdf.

Can a student be spanked at school for misbehaving?

No. The Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.1 states, “No teacher, principal or other person employed by a school board or employed in a school operated by the Commonwealth shall subject a student to corporal punishment.” Corporal punishment means inflicting physical pain on a student as a means of discipline.

It is important to understand that the law against corporal punishment does not prevent:

- the use of incidental, minor, or reasonable physical contact or other actions designed to maintain order and control;
- use of reasonable and necessary force to quell a disturbance or remove a student from the scene of a disturbance which threatens physical injury to persons or damage to property;
- the use of reasonable and necessary force to prevent a student from inflicting physical harm on himself;
- the use of reasonable and necessary force for self-defense or the defense of others; or
- the use of reasonable and necessary force to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects or controlled substances or paraphernalia which are upon the person of the student or within his or her control.

The definition of corporal punishment does not include physical pain, injury, or discomfort caused by participation in practice or competition in an interscholastic sport, or participation in physical education or an extracurricular activity.

Under what circumstances can a teacher remove a student from a classroom?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-276.2 gives teachers the authority to remove a student from a classroom for disruptive behavior in accordance with local school board policy. Disruptive behavior is defined as “conduct that interrupts or obstructs the learning environment.” When a student is removed from class, parents will be offered the opportunity to meet with the teacher and school administrators to address problems and prevent it from happening again.

Which offenses can result in expulsion?

School boards may consider expelling students who commit two types of offenses:

- bringing to school firearms or other destructive devices defined in the federal Gun-Free Schools Act of 1994 (Code of Virginia § 22.1-277.07); and
- bringing drugs, imitation drugs, or marijuana onto school property or to a school-sponsored event (Code of Virginia § 22.1-277.08).

Expulsions for other types of offenses are required to be based on consideration of the following:

- the nature and seriousness of the violation;
- the degree of danger to the school community;
- the student’s disciplinary history;
- the appropriateness and availability of an alternative education placement or program;
- the student’s age and grade level;
- the results of any mental health, substance abuse, or special education assessments;
- the student’s attendance and academic records; and
- such other matters as deemed to be appropriate.

A school board, in accordance with Code of Virginia §§ 22.1-277.07 and 22.1-277.08, may determine, based on the facts of a particular case, that special circumstances exist and another disciplinary action is appropriate.

What action can a school take when a student violates student conduct policy but claims he acted in self-defense?

According to Virginia Board of Education Student Conduct Policy Guidelines,

“A code of student conduct may, but is not required to, address consideration of self-defense as a factor in determining appropriate disciplinary action. Procedures for such consideration should include an opportunity for the student(s) to present the student’s version of what occurred, as well as a review of facts, involving school personnel and others as appropriate. The fact-seeking process may include students and other staff who may have witnessed the incident or have observed previous interactions between the students involved. In cases where self-defense is claimed, there may be a “history” between the students that often takes the investigation beyond looking at the single incident to examining patterns of interaction, past threats, and bullying. Persons from whom information is obtained could include a bus driver, other students, and parents.

School boards developing disciplinary policies including self-defense should provide criteria that define when an incident would be considered an act of self-defense. Based on the criteria used in the judicial system for a claim of self-defense to apply, the following conditions should be met. The person claiming self-defense must:

- be without fault in provoking or bringing on the fight or incident;
- have reasonably feared, under the circumstances as they appeared to him, that he was in danger of harm; and
- have used no more force than was reasonably necessary to protect him from the threatened harm.

A school board's policy addressing self-defense should retain a prohibition from bringing weapons of any kind to school for the purpose of self-defense and explicitly state that self-defense does not constitute a valid defense against possession or use of a weapon on school property or at any school-sponsored activity."

B. Parental Responsibilities Related to School

What responsibilities do parents have related to school?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-279.3 sets forth the duty of each parent of a student enrolled in a public school to assist the school in enforcing the standards of student conduct and compulsory school attendance. Procedures are set forth for notifying parents of their responsibilities, documenting the notification, and taking steps against parents for willful and unreasonable refusal to participate in efforts to improve their child's behavior or school attendance. Each parent of a student must sign a statement acknowledging the receipt of the school board's standards of student conduct and return it to the school.

Code of Virginia § 22.1-3.2.A. and B requires a parent or guardian to provide a public school, upon registration of a student, information concerning criminal convictions or delinquency adjudications for any offense listed in subsection G of Section 16.1-260. These include homicide, felonious assault and bodily wounding, criminal sexual assault, manufacture, sale, or distribution of Schedule I or II controlled substances or marijuana, arson, burglary and robbery, prohibited street gang activity, and recruitment for street gang activity. When the school registration results from foster care placement, the information is to be furnished by the local social services agency or licensed child-placing agency that made the foster care placement.

C. Child Abuse Reporting

What is considered child abuse or neglect?

Code of Virginia § 63.2-100 defines an abused or neglected child as any child under 18 years of age whose parent or any person responsible for his or her care (such as a child care provider, foster parent, or anyone responsible for the welfare of a child receiving residential care at an institution):

- causes or threatens to cause a non-accidental physical or mental injury;
- has a child present during the manufacture or attempted manufacture of a Schedule I or II controlled substance or during the unlawful sale of such substance where such activity would constitute a felony violation;
- neglects or refuses to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter, emotional nurturing, or health care;
- abandons the child;
- neglects or refuses to provide adequate supervision in relation to a child's age and level of development;
- knowingly leaves a child alone in the same dwelling with a person, not related by blood or marriage, who has been convicted of an offense against a minor for which registration is required as a violent sexual offender; or
- commits or allows to be committed any illegal sexual act upon a child, including incest, rape, indecent exposure, prostitution, or allows a child to be used in any sexually explicit visual material.

In addition, newborn infants who have been medically diagnosed for exposure to nonprescription, controlled substances during pregnancy are also considered to be at risk of abuse or neglect. Attending physicians are required to report these children.

What responsibilities do schools have for reporting suspected child abuse or neglect?

Code of Virginia § 63.2-1509 requires any teacher or other person employed in a public or private school, kindergarten, or nursery school who, in their professional or official capacity, has reason to suspect that a child is an abused or neglected child to report the matter immediately to the local department of the county or city wherein the child resides or wherein the abuse or neglect is believed to have occurred or to the Department of Social Service’s toll-free child abuse and neglect hotline.

What protections do school personnel have from being sued by a parent for reporting child abuse or neglect?

Code of Virginia § 63.2-1512 states that any person making such a report shall be immune from any civil or criminal liability in connection with the reporting unless it can be proven that the person acted in bad faith or with malicious intent.

The Virginia Department of Social Services publication A Guide for Mandated Reporters in Recognizing and Reporting Child Abuse and Neglect is available at: www.dss.virginia.gov/files/division/dfs/mandated_reporters/cps/resources_guidance/B032-02-0280-00-eng.pdf.

D. Student Records and Information Sharing

What responsibilities do schools have for student scholastic records?

State law requires that every student’s scholastic record be made available to the student and his parent, guardian, or other person having control or charge of the student for inspection during the regular school day. Permission of the parent, guardian, or other person having control or charge of the student, or of a student who is 18 years of age or older, is required for the transfer of a scholastic record to another school or school division. Consistent with federal law and regulation, every school is required to annually notify parents of students of their rights under the federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) and related regulations.

- Code of Virginia § 22.1-287 sets forth limitations on access to records.
- Code of Virginia § 22.1-287.1 defines what constitutes “directory” information that may be disclosed.
- Code of Virginia § 22.1-288 defines conditions for furnishing information to other schools, colleges or private businesses.
- Code of Virginia § 22.1-289 sets forth conditions and methods for the transfer and management of scholastic records.
- Code of Virginia § 22.1-288.1 requires the notation in records of missing children and documentation of cooperation with law enforcement.
- Code of Virginia § 22.1-288.2 defines conditions for the receipt, dissemination, and maintenance of records of certain law-enforcement information.

What information can schools share with the school resource officer?

FERPA limits access to student records. It does not prohibit a school official from disclosing information about a student if the information is obtained through the school official’s personal knowledge or observation, and not from the student’s education records. For example, if a teacher overhears a student making threatening remarks to other students, FERPA does not protect that information, and the teacher may disclose what he or she overheard to appropriate authorities.

For additional guidance, see the U.S. Department of Education’s “Balancing Student Privacy and School Safety: A Guide to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act for Elementary and Secondary Schools,” (October 2007) available at: www2.ed.gov/policy/gen/guid/fpco/brochures/elsec.html.

What acts of students are required to be reported to the school division superintendent?

Juvenile intake officers are required to notify a school superintendent of the filing of a petition against a juvenile in cases involving offenses set forth in Code of Virginia § 16.1-260.

Law enforcement officers are required to report the arrest of school employees and adult students for certain offenses under Code of Virginia § 19.2-83.1. The offenses set forth in both sections are:

- firearm offense;
- homicide;
- felonious assault and bodily wounding;
- criminal sexual assault;
- manufacture, sale, gift, distribution, or possession of Schedule I or II controlled substances;
- manufacture, sale, or distribution of marijuana;
- arson and related crimes;
- burglary and related offenses;
- robbery;
- prohibited street gang participation; and
- recruitment of juveniles for criminal street gang.

In the case of juveniles, superintendents may not disclose information about the filing of a petition except if the division superintendent believes that disclosure to school personnel is necessary to ensure the physical safety of the juvenile, other students, or school personnel within the division, he may at any time prior to receipt of the notice of disposition in accordance with Code of Virginia § 16.1-305.1 disclose the fact of the filing of the petition and the nature of the offense to the principal of the school in which the juvenile who is the subject of the petition is enrolled.

The principal may further disseminate the information, after the juvenile has been taken into custody, whether or not the child has been released, only to those students and school personnel having direct contact with the juvenile and need of the information to ensure physical safety, the appropriate educational placement or other educational services.

In cases involving employees and adult students, the arrest is a matter of public record and should be handled in accordance with established personnel and student conduct policies.

Code of Virginia § 22.1-288.2 provides additional guidance on the receipt, dissemination, and maintenance of records of certain law-enforcement information.

It is important to note that every notice of adjudication of delinquency or conviction received by the superintendent is not a disciplinary record as defined in Board of Education regulations, but must be maintained separately from all other records concerning the student. However, if the school administrators or the school board takes disciplinary action against a student based upon an incident which formed the basis for the adjudication of delinquency or conviction for an offense listed in subsection G of Code of Virginia § 16.1-260, notice shall become a part of the student’s disciplinary record.

Can education plans and behavioral assessments be used as evidence in a criminal proceeding?

A minor who commits the equivalent of a misdemeanor offense on school property or a school bus may introduce certain education-related documents as evidence. These documents, relating to educational plans or behavioral assessments, may be used to demonstrate intent. There are other guidelines governing use of these education records as evidence. A judge or magistrate will make determinations on the evidentiary utility of such documents as part of a trial. This legislation can be found in Code of Virginia § 16.1-274.2, which was enacted in July 2016.

When transferring records to another school, what information is to be included?

Under FERPA, school officials may disclose any and all education records, including disciplinary records and records that were created as a result of a student receiving special education services under Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, to another school or postsecondary institution at which the student seeks or intends to enroll. While parental consent is not required for transferring education records, the school's annual FERPA notification should indicate that such disclosures are made.

E. Student Victims

Who are victims?

Code of Virginia § 19.2-11.01, Virginia's Victims Bill of Rights, recognizes victims as anyone who has suffered physical, emotional, or financial harms, or has been harmed by certain delinquent acts. The certain delinquent acts are: 1) assault and battery in violation of § 18.2-57 or § 18.2-57.2; 2) stalking in violation of § 18.2-60.3; 3) a violation of a protective order in violation of § 16.1-253.2 or 18.2-60.4; 4) sexual battery in violation of § 18.2-67.4; 5) attempted sexual battery in violation of § 18.2-67.5; or 6) maiming or driving while intoxicated in violation of § 18.2-51.4 or § 18.2-266. When the victim is a minor, the definition of victim includes his or her parents or guardians.

What are victims' rights?

Virginia law contains a Crime Victim and Witness Rights Act, usually referred to as the Victims Bill of Rights.

The Victims Bill of Rights is intended to ensure that crime victims:

- have opportunities to make the courts aware of the full impact of crime;
- are treated with dignity, respect, and sensitivity and have their privacy protected;
- are informed of their rights;
- are protected by law enforcement and the criminal justice system;
- potentially receive compensation, financial or otherwise;
- receive authorized services; and
- are heard at all critical stages of the criminal justice process.

How can I find out about victim or witness services in my community?

The law enforcement agencies investigating a crime will give victims written information about their rights, including the telephone numbers of the Commonwealth's Attorney and other numbers to call for additional information or to receive services. They may also call the statewide toll-free Virginia Crime Victim Assistance INFO-LINE at 1-888-887-3418.

Victim/witness programs are available to provide information and assistance. It is important that victims and witnesses contact the program to learn about the different types of assistance available to them. For example, a victim who wants to receive notice of court dates or notice when an offender is released from jail must make sure the Commonwealth's Attorney and other agencies have accurate contact information.

Which specific rights do victims have?

The specific rights victims have depend on case circumstances. Examples of some rights victims most often choose to exercise are: being notified of court dates, remaining in the courtroom during hearings, and giving victim impact statements at sentencing hearings.

Victims may ask to be notified of court dates, including preliminary hearings, plea agreement hearings, trials, and sentencing hearings.

Victims have the right to remain in the courtroom during all court proceedings the defendant attends, unless the judge has determined the presence of the victim would impair the conduct of a fair trial. Examples of these court proceedings are: bail or bond hearings, preliminary hearings, trials, and sentencing hearings. Additionally, if the victim is less than 18 years of age, the court may permit an adult chosen by the victim to remain in the courtroom as a support person for the victim.

After a defendant is found guilty in circuit court, the judge may consider a victim impact statement in determining the offender's sentence. The victim impact statement gives the victim the opportunity to tell the court, in writing, the impact of the crime(s). Victims may also be given the opportunity to testify, at the sentencing hearing, regarding the impact of the crime(s). If the victim or witness cannot speak English or is hearing impaired, a court-approved interpreter may be appointed to assist during the criminal justice process, at no cost to the victim. If a victim or witness is worried about having to wait in an area near the defendant or defense witnesses, a separate waiting area for victims and witnesses may be provided.

In some cases, victims may receive financial assistance. Under certain circumstances, the defendant may be ordered to repay the victim, at least partially, for losses. This is called restitution. If the victim was injured during the crime, the victim or his or her surviving family members may be eligible to receive money from a victims' compensation fund. Witnesses traveling from out of town may be eligible for reimbursement of expenses related to each day's attendance in court. Crime victims may also bring civil lawsuits against perpetrators or other responsible parties to hold them accountable for harm suffered.

These are not all the rights of victims and witnesses. In all cases, ask the victim/witness program staff or the Commonwealth's Attorney's office for information on specific procedures and services available in your locality.

What is a victim impact statement?

Virginia law allows victims to submit a written statement that describes the impact of crimes on the victim and his or her family. These statements may be considered by the court in deciding a sentence.

The victim impact statement may contain information about:

- physical injuries and medical treatment received;
- psychological effects of the crime and treatment received;
- life changes as a result of the crime, including personal welfare, lifestyle, or family relationships; and
- economic losses.

What resources are available for students who are victims of crime?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-3.3 allows the transfer of students who were the victims of any crime against the person committed by:

- another student who attends classes in the same school;
- any employee of the local school board; or
- any volunteer, contract worker, or other person who regularly works in the school.

A student may transfer also if the crime was committed upon school property or on any school bus owned or operated by the school division. The transfer must be to another comparable school within the school division if available. Such transfer is to occur only when requested by a parent or the student, if emancipated, when the student would suffer physical or psychological harm.

F. Other Issues

What limits can schools place on students' freedom of speech/expression?

Freedom of speech/expression issues most frequently arise in connection with student newspapers and dress codes.

Within the school environment, there is a tension between freedom of speech and the need for schools to limit student behavior in order to preserve an environment conducive to learning. Tinker v. Des Moines Independent School District, 393 U.S. 503 (1969), was the landmark case that set the standards on which student free speech cases are judged. The U.S. Supreme Court held that students do not “shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.” However, student conduct that “materially disrupts classwork or involves substantial disorder or invasion of the rights of other is... not immunized by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.” Thus, the schools can prescribe speech/ expression that constitutes a “material and substantial disruption.”

There are numerous issues to be considered in prescribing student speech/expression.

Is prayer allowed in public schools in Virginia?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-203.2 requires the Virginia Board of Education, in consultation with the Office of the Attorney General, to develop guidelines on constitutional rights and restrictions relating to prayer and other religious expression in the public schools.

According to Virginia Board of Education Guidelines Concerning Religious Activity in Public Schools, “It is firmly settled in the law that the Establishment Clause forbids school-sponsored prayer or religious indoctrination, as well as any school initiative designed to endorse prayer generally or sponsor a particular religious viewpoint.” However, there are circumstances under which student prayer and other religious activities are permissible. There are numerous issues related to religious activities in schools.

Can schools require students to wear uniforms?

Code of Virginia § 22.1-79.2 requires the Virginia Board of Education to develop model guidelines for local school boards to utilize when establishing requirements for pupils to wear uniforms.

Local school boards may, but are not required to, establish requirements for school uniforms consistent with the Board guidelines.

VIII. RELATED TERMS

NOTE REGARDING JUVENILE JUSTICE

There are important differences between proceedings against adults and those against juveniles.

- Persons under 18 years of age (other than those transferred for trial as adults) are “adjudicated delinquent of offenses that would be crimes if committed by adults” rather than found guilty of felonies or misdemeanors.
- Students over 18 years of age, however, are tried as adults and, if found guilty, convicted of felonies or misdemeanors.

Abused Child: Code of Virginia § 16.1-228 defines an “abused or neglected child” as one:

- Whose parents or other person responsible for his care creates or inflicts, threatens to create or inflict, or allows to be created or inflicted upon such child a physical or mental injury by other than accidental means, or creates a substantial risk of death, disfigurement or impairment of bodily or mental functions, including, but not limited to, a child who is with his parent or other person responsible for his care either (i) during the manufacture or attempted manufacture of a Schedule I or II controlled substance, or (ii) during the unlawful sale of such substance by the child’s parents or other person responsible for his care, where such manufacture, or attempted manufacture or unlawful sale would constitute a felony violation of 18.2-248;
- Whose parents or other person responsible for his care neglects or refuses to provide care necessary for his health; however, no child who in good faith is under treatment solely by spiritual means through prayer in accordance with the tenets and practices of a recognized church or religious denomination shall for that reason alone be considered to be an abused or neglected child;
- Whose parents or other person responsible for his care abandons such child;
- Whose parents or other person responsible for his care commits or allows to be committed any sexual act upon a child in violation of the law;
- Who is without parental care or guardianship caused by the unreasonable absence or the mental or physical incapacity of the child’s parent, guardian, legal custodian or other person standing in loco parentis; or
- Whose parents or other person responsible for his care creates a substantial risk of physical or mental injury by knowingly leaving the child alone in the same dwelling, including an apartment as defined in § 55-79.2, with a person to whom the child is not related by blood or marriage and who the parent or other person responsible for his care knows has been convicted of an offense against a minor for which registration is required as a violent sexual offender pursuant to § 9.1-902.

Any threatening act that puts another person in reasonable fear of physical injury. Words alone are not an assault. If the fear of physical injury is unreasonable, the conduct is not an assault. Virginia Model Jury Instructions, Instruction 36.000, 1993 Civil Edition.]

“However, to find that a child falls within these provisions, (i) the conduct complained of must present a clear and substantial danger to the child’s life or health or to the life or health of another person, (ii) the child or his family is in need of treatment, rehabilitation or services not presently being received, and (iii) the intervention of the court is essential to provide the treatment, rehabilitation or services needed by the child or his family.”
